Art Unit: 3641

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 60-78 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Binet et al. '184, in view of the notoriously well known art.

In Binet et al. '184, note the teachings generally, and particularly in "Table VII", Example 50. Therein, one finds an example of a gassing solution according to the claimed invention. This must clearly be added to the explosive emulsion, as is notoriously well known in the art. To the extent necessary, variation of specific notoriously well known ingredients, such as in the prior art applied in the parent application of the instant application, would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art. Further, variation of specific method details would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art. It is well settled that optimizing a result effective variable is well within the expected ability of a person of ordinary skill in the subject art. In re Boesch, 617 F.2d 272, 205 USPQ 215 (CCPA 1980), In re Aller, 220 F.2d 454, 105 USPQ 233 (CCPA 1955).

3. The benefit of the parent foreign priority is still denied. Applicants in their reply did not mention at all the requirement of US law regarding that for the benefit to be granted, the invention must be disclosed in accordance with the requirements of 35 USC 112. However, this will not be discussed except to the extent that the date becomes necessary due to an intervening reference. However, applicants are reminded of their continuing duty of disclosure, including regarding any publication of their own invention, that is prior to the filing date of the PCT parent application.
